

How to Brush Your Teeth Like Baxter

Follow this guide for clean teeth, not just brushed teeth.

1. Place toothbrush at a slight angle (45 degree) toward the gums where the teeth and gums meet.

Bottom Teeth

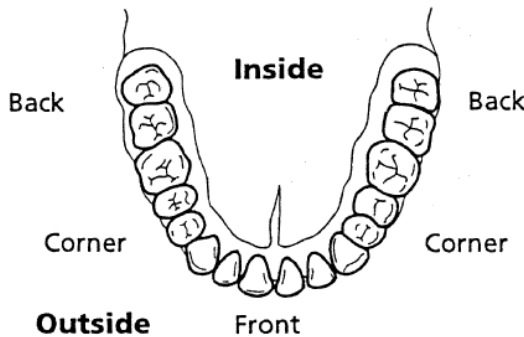

Top Teeth

2. Brush GENTLY, in small circles or short, back-and-forth strokes (“wiggle-jiggles”), counting to five.

3. Brush top teeth for one minute in this order
Top teeth outside - back, corner, front, corner, and back
Top teeth inside - back, corner, front, corner, and back
Top teeth chewing surfaces - left and right

Outside

Inside

4. Brush bottom teeth for one minute in the same order:
Bottom teeth outside - back, corner, front, corner, and back
Bottom teeth inside - back, corner, front, corner, and back
Bottom teeth chewing surfaces - left and right

Chewing Surfaces

5. Gently brush tongue from side to side, counting to five.

6. Brush at least in the morning (after breakfast) and at night (before bed).

Tongue

How to Floss Your Teeth Like Baxter

1. First, cut off about 18" of floss and wrap it around the first fingers of both hands, leaving about 2" between fingers.
2. Use the thumb and index fingers of both hands to guide floss between each tooth. Have about an inch of working floss in contact with tooth surfaces.
3. Use a gentle "wiggling" back-and-forth motion to ease floss between teeth and work it in gently. Too much pressure used to force floss down or up between teeth can damage the gums and cause bleeding.
4. Curve floss in a "C" shape around each tooth and with an up-and-down motion, scrape the tooth's side and part of its front with the floss. Go gently below the gum line in the scraping process, to remove plaque and other debris that creep below the gum line.
5. As debris builds up on the floss, unwrap-rewrap the floss between fingers so that fresh floss is available for the scraping action .

Floss can be wrapped for holding in various ways. One end of the floss can be wound around the palm and the other end around the middle finger of the second hand. Or, the ends of the floss can be tied together to form a circle which is easier for children to wrap and rewrap during flossing. Another option, a floss holder, is available at pharmacies.

